RECIPIENT OF THE BETHEL AREA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE'S BUSINESS AWARD for 1986 is Don Cross (left), owner of Mt. Abram Ski Slopes. The Chamber's George Stevens, in presenting the award, noted that Mt. Abram, in 25 years, has progressed from grooming slopes on foot to automatic snowmaking.

ANNIE KIMBALL, of the Bethel House, was the recipient of the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce's Senior Citizen Award for 1986. It was presented by Barbara D. Brown at the chamber's annual banquet, held last Friday night at The Bethel Inn.

MARGARET JOY TIBBETTS PRESENTED JOHN HEAD with the Henry H. Hastings Citizenship Award at the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce annual banquet last Friday night. Ms. Tibbetts cited the extensive and wide-ranging service work Mr. Head has done for the community.

Voters trim budget by $400K; directors begin work on cuts

Last Wednesday night, district voters—in an unprecedented action—trimmed $400,000 from the proposed school budget. The budget, as proposed on the district meeting warrant, had suggested a 16 percent increase over the current budget, to about $4.2 million.

This would have caused an average 52 percent increase in assessments to the five district towns.

The impetus to cut $400,000 from the proposed budget came from the selectmen of the five towns.

The new budget for the coming fiscal year (beginning July 1), as passed, is still $200,000 higher than the budget for the current fiscal year.

Softball and baseball teams in playoffs today

The Telstar baseball and softball teams both made it to the state playoffs, school officials announced yesterday (Tuesday). Both teams finished with identical 10-3 records, although the baseball team finished higher in the Heat point ratings because the teams they faced had better records than the teams the girls faced.

The baseball team finished 5th in Class C in the ratings—not 4th as originally announced. The softball team finished 11th.

The baseball team faces Livermore Falls—ranked 12th in the Heat point standings—at 3:30 this afternoon (Wednesday) at the Telstar field.

The girls journey to Readfield today to play the 6th-place Maranacook Black Bears. The time is also 3:30 p.m.

The second round of games, for those teams winning their first-round games, will be Saturday.

The directors of the school board will begin Thursday night to look for areas of their original budget that can be cut. Superintendent of Schools Dewaine Craig presented the directors with some possible cuts, totaling $400,700. (See adjacent article.)

Mr. Craig also will suggest a few alternatives to the budget cuts. One alternative is to hold a new budget meeting. [One drawback to this is that the state specifies it would have to have at least as many voters as the original budget meeting.]

Another alternative is to start the school year without cutting the budget and then see how far the budget will last. Mr. Craig estimates the allotted revenues would run out in April 1987, at which time a special budget meeting could be held to decide upon a supplemental allocation.

Yet another alternative is to change the '86-'87 school year so that the second half of the year would run from late February through August. [This would allow the year's expenses to be covered partially by the fresh budget of fiscal '88.]

In addition, some directors have said they will propose their own list of programs that can be cut.

The session is open to the public, and some school directors urged that people interested in particular programs should show up in order to make their feelings known.

Last Wednesday, in an overflowing Telstar gym, people made their feelings known with ballots, soundly defeating the proposed 16 percent increase in the budget.

Moderator of the meeting, Bill Cousins, said in opening the meeting at 7:55 p.m., continued on Page 3

Here are the proposed budget cuts suggested by Superintendent of Schools Dewaine Craig. They will be discussed at the school board meeting tomorrow night, scheduled for 7 p.m. in the Telstar library.

- A savings of $26,000 by eliminating the buses for sporting events and late buses;
- A savings of $38,000 by eliminating one of two bus purchases;
- A savings of $20,000 by eliminating elementary school athletic programs;
- A savings of $8,000 by eliminating all school field trips;

Circus coming to town

The circus is coming to town!

Sponsored by the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce, the Old Tyme American Circus, of Texas, will be setting up its big-top tent June 29 and 30 in Bethel.

The Board of Directors of the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce voted yesterday to sign a contract to bring the circus to town.

The place for setting up the circus tent has not yet been decided. However, it is already known that there will be a parade of elephants up Main Street and a contest for area children to select a lucky winner to get into the circus free.

Primary elections, and Bethel polls, Tuesday, June 10

Next Tuesday is the state's primary. (See page 3 for sample ballots for the primary election.) It is also the day for Bethel's town election.

At stake are two selectman seats, two assessor and two school director seats. The only contest is in the school director election.

Polls will be open
Tuesday, 9 a.m.-8 p.m.

Running for selectman are incumbent Victor Colledge and newcomer Arthur Gilbert. The 69-year-old Mr. Gilbert is the retired postmaster of West Bethel. He was born and raised in West Bethel, graduated from Gould Academy in 1935 and worked as a mechanic in a Berlin, N.H., car dealership before his stint as postmaster. He is presently a member of the Planning Board.

Mr. Gilbert said he decided to run for a seat on the Board of Selectmen after "several (people) got after me and thought we should have a representative from that part of town." Although he has not taken out nomination papers for the assessor's position, he indicated he would serve if elected on a write-in.

Mr. Gilbert sees the school budget as the major problem for the town. "I think continued on Page 3

Town Meeting June 10th & 11th

Bethel's annual town meeting will be next Tuesday and Wednesday, June 10 and 11, beginning with town elections on the first day.

The business of the warrant will be dealt with on the second day, at 7 p.m., at Gould Academy auditorium. The budget proposals total approximately $710,000, down 2.8 percent from last year.

The amount to be raised is up slightly from last year, to $559,000, from $544,000. This will cause the mill rate for the municipal budget to increase about 50 cents per $1,000 of assessed valuation.

Town Manager Rodney Lynch said, "It's a no-frills budget that reflects the real needs of the area."

Making up the tax assessment, in addition to money to be raised for the municipal budget, there is also the county assessment of $36,000 and the school assessment of $578,000.

Rafael Neil Bradley, Jr., will be sentenced June 13, at 2 p.m., in superior court in South Paris. He was convicted last month of the murder of Russell Stevens.

Those receiving their diplomas were: Brian Abbott, Robert Anderson, Frank Campbell, Linda Cary, Christine Corriveau, Judy Dutcher, Tammy Kotthaus, Stephen Millett, Lee Wells, and Todd Wilson.

A large audience of family and friends was on hand to applaud the graduates. Jane deFrees, chairman of the Maine State Board of Education, gave the commencement address.

Rev. Jean Bass, of the West Parish Congregational Church gave the invocation and benediction; Merrill Bittner, director of Adult & Community Education, and Darlene Hall, chairman of the SAD #44 Board of Directors, presented the diplomas; Dewaine Craig, superintendent of schools of SAD #44, gave congratulatory remarks.

Opinions

The voters have spoken—loudly

Use any adjectives you want to—they would almost all be appropriate in describing the district budget meeting last Wednesday night at Telstar.

It was historic: never before had more than 700 people gotten together to discuss the SAD #44 budget;

It was unprecedented: never before had a local budget meeting run right over into a new day;

It was confused: scheduled to be held in the auditorium at 7 p.m., it was actually held in the gym at 8 p.m., and then—because of lack of understanding of parliamentary procedure—voting was delayed an hour;

It was drastic: never before had the budget been trimmed by nearly 10 percent after being presented to the voters—although the trimming still left the budget with a $200,000 increase over the present year;

It was overpowering: the sentiment against the proposed $4.2 million budget was deep and broad, leading to the final budget approval of $3.8 million. The support for the proposed budget, on the other hand, seemed narrow—mostly school personnel.

Judging from the vote tallies on various issues, it seems unqualified support for the original budget came from only about 200 voters. Though they remained to the bitter end, they were outvoted on every important ballot.

On the other hand, as the hours went by, supporters of budget cutting began leaving. Even before the first budget-cutting vote, scores of mostly older voters had headed home—it being already 11 p.m. Had the voting been done earlier in the evening, the numbers voting against the proposed 16 percent increase in the budget would have undoubtedly been greater.

One interesting oddity was that although school teachers and school administrators were very vocal in support of the proposed budget, not one school director spoke in support of the budget—or against it (though Director Stan Howe did stand and vote to trim the increase.)

Maybe because they had worked so hard for it, many teachers and administrators were visibly hurt and angry afterwards. The halls and offices at Telstar were silent and somber last Thursday. And teachers and staff were bleary-eyed from their long night at the district meeting.

There was, and still is, a lot of anger on the part of teachers towards those who voted to trim the 16 percent budget increase in order to keep the assessments to the towns from increasing the originally expected 52 percent. Teachers point out that their film strips need replacing because they still describe landing a man on the moon as a possibility for the future. Teachers also point out that their social studies texts still talk of the Vietnam War as being in progress.

Other supporters of the original budget point out that the new portable classrooms are a necessity, while others point out that a new school bus is a necessity, while others pinpoint yet other necessities.

Granted, there are numerous necessities. But even necessities can be ranked in order of importance if you have only a limited amount of money to pay for them. And the decision by the majority of the district voters that the school board has only $3.8 million—instead of $4.2 million—to spend will force that board to set priorities. Is getting teachers' and administrators' salaries adjusted upward as fast as possible more important than improving curriculum materials? Is a new burner for a boiler more important than new classrooms? Is a ski-track-making machine more important than a speech clinician?

There are some who say: everything is important and the school system will fall apart without the original budget. This is not a realistic view of the world. Every family and every business lives within a budget: baby needs new shoes, mother needs a new coat, father needs a new set of tools, the older daughter needs braces, the older boy needs a new baseball glove, the house needs new roofing and the car needs new tires. Everything can't be done at once, and so priorities are set: thus, some necessities get taken care of this year, while some have to be scheduled for next year, and some for the year after that.

The school board must do the same thing: list all the school district's necessities and then decide which ones will be funded this year, which ones next year, and which ones the year after that. The final product of the reconsideration of the budget should be a three- or five-year plan that will give voters a clear sense of where the district schools are headed.

As advocated here last week, the $103,000 in state money being withheld from the budget by district officials should be committed this year to fuel some programs that may otherwise be cut.

Withholding the state grant, while at the same time claiming that state support for district schools is decreasing, seems callous. Moreover, holding that money in reserve so that higher salaries for teachers will cause less strain on future assessments seems to place little faith in the voters' desire to pay good teachers a fair wage.

The district will likely receive a higher state allotment in fiscal '88 than in this coming fiscal '87, because of certain repayments of fiscal '87 expenditures. Therefore, holding onto the state's $103,000 for a rainy day makes little sense. In fact, the rainy day is now. bfw

A note from the publisher

If you like having tourists in town, you're likely to love this coming summer tourism season.

I've been distributing our summer tourism paper the past couple of weeks, and I can tell you that lots of people seem to want to come up here to visit.

The New England Vacation Center, on Fifth Avenue, in New York City, last summer took from us 200 tourism tabloids for the entire season. This summer, Jerry Miller, who is in charge of literature at the center, said he wanted 300 tabloids right away. He said New Yorkers are anxious for information on Maine vacation spots.

The usual reasons: fear of terrorism abroad, the unfavorable dollar exchange rate abroad, and fallout from Chernobyl.

We distributed the bulk of this summer's tabloids—over 25,000—as inserts in weekly papers north of Boston. While we haven't heard from all our advertisers yet, it does seem the response was swift from people who received the tabloid. Robin Zinchuk, at The Chapman Inn, said she had a guest from West Boxford, Mass., who told her the tabloid arrived just in time for her to make her reservation for the weekend in Bethel. And Don Taylor, at Early Real Estate, said he had four calls from Massachusetts immediately after the tabloid was distributed.

Last week I loaded up my car with about 4,000 tabloids to take to sports stores and YMCA's/YWCA's north of Boston. As I was paying my toll at the Kittery toll gate, the toll-taker noticed the colorful tabloids and asked if he could have one. Then all the toll-takers wanted to see one.

And speaking of Kittery, when I dropped off 500 tabloids at the state's information center, I was told that would hold them for maybe two weeks. It's a good thing we printed plenty.

While I was visiting in Ipswich, Mass., with the publisher of North Shore Weeklies—my former boss, whose papers we use to distribute the inserted tabloids—we were talking about differing costs of living. I mentioned to him what my wife Mary and I paid for our home in Bethel, and he said you couldn't buy a home in Ipswich for less than four times that amount.

That brought home to me the reality that dollar costs are just so many numbers unless placed in the context of the local economy. For example, when I was editor of the paper in Ipswich, I paid young reporters what my partner, John Brown, and I now pay ourselves. I had to pay them that amount in order for them to have enough money to pay for housing. Here, because housing is relatively cheap, I can get by on what I used to pay to someone on his or her first job out of college.

And that's why I'm unimpressed by comparison figures of teachers' salaries here and teachers' salaries in Portland, or L.A., or Boston. In reality, there can be no comparison unless the entire cost of living is compared.

Speaking of things that don't impress me: guns don't impress me; muscles don't impress me. Courage impresses me. And that's why, for my money, Sylvester ("Rambo") Stallone is a wimp. He was afraid to go to the Cannes Film Festival in France. Too many terrorists, his agent said.

I'm not the bravest guy in the world, but I'd be happy to go to France, especially if someone else were paying, and especially during black fly season.

Now that the DOE has announced it's suspending its search for a second underground repository for high-level nuclear waste, we can all breathe a little easier. Right?

Not really. If you're unconcerned about the possibility of having radioactivity get into the groundwater of the western United States, last Wednesday's announcement by the DOE was a cause for boundless celebration.

But if you're convinced, as I am, that burying high-level waste in bedrock and expecting the lethal fluid to stay within its tomb for 10,000 years is a fantasy, then you'll no doubt continue to be opposed to the DOE plan.

I, for one, am unwilling to send radioactive waste from Wiscasset to pollute a portion of Washington, Nevada or Texas—the states in the running for a first high-level nuclear waste site.

If you missed the great district budget meeting marathon last Wednesday (and Thursday) you missed a great example of how a democratic society makes decisions. It wasn't entirely neat and clean, but open debate never is.

When the dust had settled, there were a lot of hurt feelings, mostly in the in-laws of teachers and administrators and staff. They should all realize, however, that a vote against the budget increase was not a vote against them or against the school system. It was quite simply a vote against writing a blank check for the schools. It was a clear call for a statement of priorities.

Talk with students and you'll realize that we have a very good school system, with mostly very dedicated teachers. If there's one main problem, it's that not enough students take advantage of enough of what our schools offer. And that's a problem of the parents and students—not of the schools.

Tuesday's election will give voters a chance to express their preferences for gubernatorial candidates for the two major parties. Democrats have five choices—although, except for the outlandish Ricci, most of them seem quite similar on the issues. Republicans get to

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

On Tuesday, June 10, the people of Maine will have the opportunity to vote by referendum to make it illegal to publish or sell pornographic literature in the State of Maine. Approximately 24 other states in these United States have such a law and not one of them has been repealed.

Much publicity has been given to this matter over the past several months. There seems to be quite a bit of misunderstanding which has tended to cloud the real issue involved.

First there seems to be the question of an adequate definition of what obscenity really is. In a society such as we live in today one could not possibly get a definition that all would agree to. In the first place we are living at a time when there is no longer any absolutes, so there is bound to be a difference of opinion as to correct definition of terms.

Secondly, there seems to be a misunderstanding that it will introduce some form of censorship on printed matter, that certain books can be banned from our public libraries and we will be told what we can or cannot read. There is no such intent by this law. It is to make it unlawful to make available through commercial sale obscene and pornographic books, magazines, and video tapes, that unmistakably are a factor in demoralizing the people of our state. Presently these can be bought at the corner drug store or the convenience store down the street.

But to put everything into perspective, you could not have a free society without some form of censorship. For example, one cannot print or speak slanderous words against their neighbor in this country without being liable. You could not shout the word "Fire" when there was no fire in a building crowded with people, without being subject to arrest. There has to be laws to control words and pictures that are going to do irreparable harm to others. That's what this is all about.

As far as censorship and obscenity are concerned, however, in 1957 the Supreme Court ruled that obscenity is not protected free speech under the First Amendment of the Constitution. So it certainly cannot be censorship to ban what is not protected under free speech in the first place.

The real issue is none of these things, but are we going to continue to allow an industry said to be making 8 to 10 billion dollars a year, with strong evidence of connections with organized crime, to continue to prosper at the expense of bringing moral havoc to the citizens of our state and nation. There are said to be 20,000 porno book stores in our nation, which is three times the number of McDonald restaurants. All because of just plain lust and greed. The FBI has made a report that 400,000 parents are using their own children in the production of child pornography. Shocking beyond words. Extensive research has unmistakably revealed that pornography is linked to rape and sexual violence against women and children, and has done much to encourage deviant sexual behavior. One study revealed that in one group arrested and convicted of molesting children indicated that por-choose between a man wooing the right way and a man trying to be all things to all people.

Bethelites, additionally, get to choose among three good candidates for two seats on the Board of Directors of the school district. Also to be decided are two seats on the Board of Selectmen. There are only two candidates, so there is little choosing to be done.

Probably the most important choice voters will be faced with Tuesday is the so-called "obscenity" referendum. This measure, if passed, would make it a criminal offense for a person to have in his or her possession six or more films, magazines, photos or books that some group of censors decreed to be obscene.

The people pushing this referendum hold up pornographic trash and say, "This is what we're trying to outlaw." But, in fact, what we notice in places that have "obscenity" ordinances is that books like "Catcher in the Rye" and "Romeo and Juliet" and videos like "On Golden Pond" wind up getting banned.

Here is what the proposed ordinance would do: It would make possession of six pieces of "obscene" material a crime. That which is obscene, according to the proposed ordinance, is that which "depicts or describes...sexual acts...normal or perverted, actual or simulated."

There's a lot of trash being peddled in movies, tapes and TV. And this "obscenity" ordinance wouldn't touch it. Take a look at daytime soap operas and see if you agree that the behavior of those actors and actresses is suitable as role models for our youngsters. Or go to any of the current crop of violent PG-rated films aimed at teenagers and tell me if you think the heroes and heroines present role models of what constitutes decent, human behavior traits.

Granted, there's a lot of portrayals of violent sexual activity around us. But the main problem in our society is violence—not sex. Media moguls can depict a person harassing, beating, kicking, stabbing or shooting another person, and that's fine. But let the movie or book depict two people making love, and you'll find some self-righteous groups ready to shout "obscene."

If we want to improve the way we deal with one another, we have to begin by having the media represent human beings as caring, rather than cursing. But censorship is not the way to bring about change, because it allows one group of people to decide for everyone what can, and cannot, be read or seen.

To the Editor:

Let us not lose sight of one of the most important tasks of our community, the education of our students and the continued growth of the people in our area. The budget meeting is over and we can't change the results. However, that doesn't change the need for quality education in our schools.

This does not just apply to educators. The teachers and administrators need the support and assistance of everyone in the district, especially in this time of restricted resources.

If you have a gripe with the educational system, talk with the teachers, administrators and school board and be willing to take a personal role in being part of the solution.

People are our most important resource. In order to make our schools work effectively each one of us—business people, parents, grandparents, aunts, uncles, students, selectmen, school board members and people without children—need to ask ourselves, "What can I do to support our schools and help our students get the best education they can get?"

If we take this challenge seriously, we can't help but go forward. Oftentimes situations of crisis and conflict can lead into periods of creative problem-solving. Let us put the past behind us and all of us put the present and the future squarely in front of us.

Jim Chandler
Woodstock

To the Editor:

"Do you want to make it a crime to make, sell, give for value, or otherwise promote obscene material in Maine?—Yes/No?"

In opposition to the above censorship referendum to appear on the primary ballot in Maine on June 10, the New England Booksellers Association has contributed $1,000 to "Maine Citizens Against Government Censorship" and encouraged its 550 members to lend their opposition efforts individually as well. The (referendum measure) is deftly phrased to make voting "yes" seem a vote for curbing obscenity, while it is in fact a direct denial of another's right to choose what to read. Booksellers and librarians have long felt that allowing freedom to choose what is read is the best way for citizens to be fully informed, educated individuals, able to make better decisions in a complex world.

Elizabeth Browder
New England Booksellers Assoc.

pornographic magazines stimulated them to commit sexual acts against children.

Isn't it about time we put a stop to all this dirty business? Is it right to allow a few people to become fabulously wealthy by making millions into moral wrecks? Someone has rightly said all that is necessary for evil to flourish is for good people to do nothing about it.

Therefore, I am strongly urging every decent moral upright person to go to the polls and vote "Yes" on this referendum.

R.M. Lord
Bryant Pond

To the Editor:

Suppose you went to vote and found this question on the ballot: "Do you want to let the government decide what you can read and watch in the privacy of your home?"

As a lifelong resident of Maine, I know we would cast a virtually unanimous "no" vote on such a ridiculous question. And yet that very question is what we are really being asked to decide June 10. If you haven't heard of it, it's because this attack on one of our basic American freedoms is masquerading as a so-called anti-obscenity law.

The referendum is on the ballot because many Maine people, sincerely concerned about the spread of pornography, signed a petition they were told would do something about obscene books, magazines, movies, and the like. They were not told just how far-reaching the bill actually is.

Even today, the supporters of the law are something less than candid about what the law will do. They continue to insist, for example, that only those in the business of selling obscene materials need fear the law. But they don't tell you that the bill makes no exceptions for libraries, museums, and other cultural institutions—or even the privacy of your home.

So when supporters of this referendum say that only professional pornographers are at risk, that isn't what the law says. That's the fundamental flaw with this law. In their earnest desire to clean up pornography, the advocates of this law created a legal monster, an assault on our freedoms far worse than the original problem.

And that's why Maine Citizens Against Government Censorship was formed to fight this bill.

Someone needs to stand up and say that this law is a little like using a bulldozer to take out the trash. And that's why we say the issue in this referendum campaign is not pornography, but freedom.

We cannot dilute our constitutional freedoms because we dislike how a few people use their freedom of the press. But that's what the bill does. And therefore it does not make you a supporter of obscenity or pornography to oppose the referendum.

The advocates of this bill say they just want to protect children. But, like so much of what they say, that's misleading. The fact is, we already have federal and state laws which provide harsh penalties against those who use children in the production of obscene materials or who distribute such material to minors.

...This law is un-American. Our freedom of choice is a fundamental con-

To the Editor:

History repeats itself. In 1982 the voters of SAD #44 voted not to build a new school in Woodstock. The Board of Directors had researched the feasibility of such a move and presented their findings to the public. The people just weren't ready to accept the Board's decision. Three years later, after realizing that perhaps the Board had been telling it straight, the voters overwhelmingly accepted the proposal and the project was on its way. The disheartening facts are that the price tag increased considerably over that time and much money went up in smoke trying to heat three old inefficient buildings. The time table for adding to Crescent Park School was set back and resulted in the need for the stop-gap measure of portable classrooms.

Again the SAD #44 Board has been looking to the future with long range planning. This time in the area of curriculum. Each year a study committee carefully examines the needs and means of fulfilling them for one or two curriculum areas. It takes 5 years to study and implement the results. The cycle is then repeated, so that no portion is neglected. A serious look at objectives and materials to meet current needs of a subject area requires that administrators and teachers give a great deal of time and thought to the process. One of the subjects for this year was Social Studies—a long neglected area. New materials for all grades, K to 12, were to have been purchased.

Society is making demands on the schools. The education institution seems to be the place for not only teaching basics, but for looking after the needs that once were met through homes, churches and community organizations. I am referring to such needs as health instruction, physical education, guidance, caring for the handicapped, counseling the emotionally disturbed and substance abusers. The schools are now expected to provide special programs for the creative and talented students. Enrichment programs in art and music are expected. Extra-curricular programs must be many and varied to meet the needs of each student. Students need transportation for many activities beyond getting to and from the school each day.

School is a community within a community. All of the demands are not only expected but have been mandated by the State and Federal governments. Guidelines have been set for the implementation of the mandates. All of this activity translates into a multi-million dollar project. Our society is very much a technological one. Our children need to be prepared for the future. Many do not have the benefit of a stable home. The schools have been required to fill the gap in many ways that you can imagine.

The needs are there. The money is out there—but certainly not to be derived solely from local property tax. Sales tax and income tax are much more viable sources to fund the necessary programs.

During the recent budget crunch, many false accusations have been made. The truth is as perceived by the individual. Two persons may look at the same set of facts or examine the same sequence of events and report the results in two very different conclusions. For example, the Legislature says the school must provide guidance services for students from grades K to 12. It doesn't say how. In SAD #44, we have one high school guidance counselor. For the other 9 grades scattered in five different schools, we have one half-time guidance counselor. Are we meeting the mandate? My perception is that we are certainly not meeting it for the elementary students.

It is sad that because individuals don't perceive the same facts in the same manner that character assassination is taking place. The past year has been extremely satisfying in the number of students and teachers who have been cited for excellence. We have been fortunate in finding high quality candidates for many recently filled positions. Morale among staff (members) has greatly improved in the past 2 or 3 years. This positive feeling rubs off on the students.

The democratic process works in "mysterious ways." It's a slow process that often gets abused. We would not, however, desire that it be altered or abandoned.

The School Board presented a budget to the voters which would continue and improve present programs and re-initiate some that have been deleted in the past. The voters have said, "No." Time will heal wounds. I believe time will indicate that the Board's recommendations were necessary for the well-being of the District's students. Will history repeat itself?

stitutional right. What one person considers art or literature is what someone else considers pornography, and the government has no business deciding which one is right.

If you object to material that is sexually oriented—or portrays violence, or contains political thought you dislike—you have the right to avoid it. But you do not have the right to prevent others from exercising their right of choice. This law crosses that line.

If this referendum passes, your right and my right to buy, read, rent, or borrow anything we want goes out the window. The government—and that means the police—will become the authority on what is fit for the rest of us to read and watch.

I do not believe that Maine people will sit by and let a small minority erode our freedom. The way to prevent that is to vote down the so-called anti-pornography law on June 10.

REPUBLICAN GUBERNATORIAL CANDIDATE JOHN MCKERNAN visited The Citizen office last week and explained some of his positions on increased state funding for education to Editor John Brown. Congressman McKernan was accompanied by Karen Brown, of Bethel. The two served together in the state Legislature in the '70s. Rep. McKernan faces Porter Leighton in the statewide primary election next Tuesday.

PRIMARY ELECTIONS

We've got to get some relief from this school tax situation. (As for the municipal budget), I think it's about right, but with the school budget taking as much as it does, it doesn't leave enough for general services. Probably we could stand more money in the highway department, in the fire department, and more police protection."

He said the town manager is doing "a reasonably good job," and he sees the wages of town employees as being compatible with other wages in the area.

He would like to see the state do more highway construction in the area, particularly Route 26 coming towards Bethel and Route 2 heading towards New Hampshire. "To get in or out of Bethel, you've got to travel them," he pointed out.

Mr. Gilbert says he does not agree with those who complain that Bethel is growing too fast. "Some say they think it's a problem, but I can't visualize it." He added, "I question whether zoning, as such, will ever come."

Victor Coolidge, of Northwest Bethel, ran unopposed last year for the remaining year of Danny Davis' term. Now he is running for a full term as selectman and as assessor. He was unavailable for an interview.

Running for the two director seats on the school board are incumbent Merton Brown and residents Jane Rolfe and Dick Crandall. Mr. Crandall is a newcomer to town—though not a newcomer to politics—having moved to Bethel with his family last year.

Mr. Brown is finishing his first three-year term on the board. He is the town clerk of Bethel, a position he has held for 11 years. He is a graduate of Gould Academy, Class of 1967. He and his wife Martha have three children.

Mrs. Rolfe graduated from Telstar, Class of 1972. She works at the Bethel Savings Bank and is a member of the Bethel Recreation Board. She and her husband Philip have two children, one of whom is already in the local school system.

Mr. Crandall was born in Presque Isle and graduated from high school there, in 1959. He is employed in the accounting department at Boise Cascade, in Rumford. He and his wife Carol have three children: one at Telstar, one at Gould, and one at Dartmouth. Prior to moving to Bethel, he was a town councilman in Winslow and was the director of the Waterville/Winslow Solid Waste Corp.

Mr. Brown enjoys his work on the school board and believes he's done a good job. "Most people in the area know me," he said. "A number of parents have said, 'If it hadn't been for you, my child wouldn't have graduated.' That's where I feel I've been most effective as far as my constituents have been concerned."

Mr. Brown sees vocational education as one of the needs the school system is not adequately addressing. "NOVA just doesn't serve our needs (and) NOVA is costing thousands of dollars too much. "A high school should prepare students for the job market, and Telstar doesn't."

Mrs. Rolfe tended to agree. "They (the students) should be taught about the real world. People coming into the bank can't even reconcile their checking accounts."

Mr. Crandall, whose daughter is in the middle school, complained that the middle school lacks an identity. He said it should have its own administrator, as it used to.

On the other hand, he believes the physical plant is excellent at Telstar, but needs upgrading at the elementary schools. He gives high marks to the teaching staff and the programs. But one program he would like to see pushed is

Mrs. Rolfe wants to see more attention paid to the elementary schools.

None of the candidates was in favor of heavy cuts in the school budget. But Mr. Crandall suggested that it would have had an easier time had the school directors taken $95,000, out of the spending package, as they had discussed. He added, "I think it's unfortunate for the selectmen and the school board to be debating the school budget in public and in the newspaper." He said it would be better for the two groups to meet informally and discuss the pending budget early on. He said this was the practice in Winslow, where he served on the town council.

Mr. Brown suggested a citizen group go over the budget and make recommendations to the school board's finance committee while the budget is in preparation.

"My beef with the budget is the state mandates," he added. "That's where the problem is."

Mrs. Rolfe said, "Granted there are places that can be cut (but) one thing I'm very strong on is portable classrooms."

VOTERS TRIM BUDGET

"Can you imagine how the Telstar Rebels would do at their basketball games with a crowd like this?"

In fact, the Rebels would not be able to play basketball in the gym with a crowd like that. The 721 registered voters who took part in the meeting filled the bleachers and spilled over onto the gym floor and into the doorways.

The voters represented the following towns: Andover, 64; Bethel, 389; Greenwood, 90; Newry 25; Woodstock, 153.

Originally scheduled to be held in the auditorium, the meeting had to be moved to the gym as the crowd continued to swell. Herb Dunham, selectman from Greenwood, seeing the huge turnout, predicted it meant the budget-cutting measure would pass by better than a 2-1 margin.

He was absolutely right.

After passing a number of preliminary articles on the warrant, the pro-16-percent-increase and anti-increase forces finally came to a showdown on Article VI. That article proposed assessing the towns for $900,728 more than what had already been assessed for obtaining matching funds from the state. (Of the $900,728, about $600,000 was the sum of the increase in the proposed budget over the present budget.) The proposal—read by teacher Larry Arsenault—was soundly defeated: 199-435—better than a 2-1 margin.

The next vote was to see if voters would be willing to split the difference between the $900,728 the school board had proposed and the $500,728 proposed by the selectmen (which incorporated their suggested cut of $400,000). Jack Johnson, of Woodstock, was the sponsor of the compromise measure. It also went down to defeat, 267-333.

There was nothing left after that, except the selectmen's proposal—proposed on the floor by Selectman Pat Dooen, of Bethel. It passed handily, 323-196.

Even before debate on the budget cut got underway, it was clear that those wanting to trim the budget increase would likely have the votes to do so. The first indication was on a motion by Mrs. Dooen to have voting done by secret ballot.

The measure was strongly opposed by school personnel and the school board. Nevertheless, the measure passed. (Of the 17 members of the board, only Bethel Director John Brown voted for the secret ballot motion.)

The basic feeling of those supporting the school board's 16 percent budget increase was voiced by teacher Louise Chapman, of Greenwood: "What we're voting on is the quality of education of our children."

On the other hand, Selectman Arthur Myshraill, of Andover, expressed the view of those who believed cutting $400,000 of the proposed increase was not only justified, but necessary: "We are not educators (but) we know how much our people have to spend. Spending a lot of money doesn't ensure that we get higher quality education."

It was never made clear what programs would have to be taken out of the budget in order to trim the budget increase by $400,000. In response to a question by Bill Riley, of Woodstock, Superintendent Dewaine Craig said, "Four-hundred-thousand-dollars-worth of cuts would have serious effects. It would probably cut into all aspects of education (including) teachers (and) extracurricular activities."

Teacher Jolene Shimamura, of Bethel, was one of those who believed the budget had been kept too low too long. "The budget has always been bare bones, and now we're suffering."

On the other hand, Joe Robiller, a businessman from Woodstock, complained that a tax increase of 31 percent—which would have been the effect on Woodstock taxpayers of the proposed school district budget—was way too high. "The tax increase would be unacceptable," he said.

The compromise proposal to trim just $200,000 from the proposed $600,000 increase received strong support from Ted Chadbourne, of Bethel. "We can go out of here a unified community if we make a decent compromise," he said. He declared the $400,000 cut suggested by the selectmen "meat axe cutting."

But Selectman Dooen supported the selectmen's position, saying, "They (the school board) will have to study the budget and set their priorities."

On other articles, the votes were as follows:

• To approve a Regional Vocational Budget of $240,385 (with a district assessment of $63,751): 407-154;

• To approve an Adult Ed budget under Regional Vocational of $21,882 (with a district assessment of $1,238): 425-95;

• To approve a Foundation Allocation sum of $2,709,732 (with local share to be raised $1,216,594): 458-38;

• To approve a debt service allocation of $69,474 (with local share of $34,063): 481-12

• To approve expending a total of $3,755,267 during the coming fiscal year: 332-43. On this article, an attempt was made to commit to the budget an additional $103,000 in state funds being kept in reserve by the school board. The attempt failed.

• To approve $51,650 for adult education (with local share of $19,650): 254-21.

The meeting ended at 1:05 a.m., Thursday morning.

Pvt. Vanessa M. Noyes, daughter of Frederick C. and Cheryl A. Noyes, of Bryant Pond, has completed basic training at Fort Jackson, S.C. She is a 1984 graduate of Telstar Regional High School.

By COLISTA MORGAN

I have just witnessed the lower rim of the sun touch the mountains and the western sky a blaze of color. Long purple shadows reached down into the valleys. The air was fragrant with the growing of new grass and the scent of mint and flowers. As I stood and watched a streak of peach-colored sky spread across the horizon, then slowly disappeared, taking with it the last of the day. I stood spell-bound for a moment then entered the house.

Everywhere now are bluebirds in the meadows and flowers in the woods and swamps. Around the house we have the common cultivated flowers, iris, phlox, golden glow, columbine, and clumps of lilacs. But beyond the yard, extending away on all sides are the natural gardens, the field flowers and those of the woods, the wild gardens, varied blooming plants called weeds.

Somewhere among these is the teacher or even bird, I hear the song time after time "teacher-teacher-teacher" when I walk the woods or the road, but I have yet to see one. It resembles a thrush and also behaves like one. It's nest is constructed like an oven, made from weaving grass, stems, leaves, and rootlets, with mosses and bark forming the interior and having a sheltering dome of leaves. The mother bird enters or leaves from the side. It is so well camouflaged that it is hard to find unless one follows the bird to it. I have never found one.

These things for us are peace at the end of a summer's day. They symbolize the every day satisfactions of our country life. We are keenly aware of how much of the sweetness of life is found in simple things, such simple things, as the song of a bird, or the scent of a flower.

Edward W. Whittier

Whittier running for Register of Probate

Incumbent Edward W. Whittier, of South Paris, has announced he will seek election to the office of Register of Probate for Oxford County. The election is for a two-year term to fill the remaining part of the term of William Haynes, who resigned from the office at the end of March. Mr. Whittier was appointed by Gov. Joseph Brennan at that time to fill the vacancy until the end of the year.

In making his announcement, Mr. Whittier said, "The job of the probate office is to protect the rights of many of those who cannot protect themselves. We deal with estates, adoptions, guardianships, conservatorships and related matters. It is our function to help see that the wishes of the deceased are carried out, that the rights of children and parents are protected in adoptions, and that guardians and conservators properly protect their charges. These are important duties and are duties which I feel I am very well qualified to perform. I hope the voters of Oxford County will agree with the judgment of Governor Brennan who chose me for the interim position over a number of other candidates."

Mr. Whittier is a certified public accountant who has operated his own accounting business in South Paris for 14 years. He graduated from Middlebury College in Vermont with a degree in Economics and received his masters degree in Business Administration from Dartmouth College.

Before opening his own business he worked two years for Ernst & Whinney, a large CPA firm in Portland. He and his wife, Peggie, and their three children, live in South Paris.

We had a beautiful Memorial Day this year and a lot of people out to help us celebrate and to remember those who gave their lives for us. The winners of the essay contest were Heather Roberts, Solari Buchanan, and Stacey House. Many thanks to all who helped in any way to make this program a success.

Guests for a cookout on Memorial Day at the Ken Hoyts were Mr. and Mrs. David Crockett and Ray and James Hoyt, Bethel, and Beatrice Farnum and Bob Hoyt.

Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hoyt and Bob, Beatrice Farnum and Beth Hoyt joined a potluck dinner at Mr. and Mrs. Edward Chase's camp to celebrate Kieth Stevens' birthday. Also present were Mr. and Mrs. John Chase, Crystal and Andrew, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stevens, Jenny and Danny.

The Woodstock Alumni banquet will be held on Saturday June 14 at Telstar Regional High School at 6 p.m.

A petition was received by the selectmen which was signed by 22 residents of Church Street. The petition claimed much damage to the sides of the road. This particular road cost nearly $9,000 about two years ago. After inspecting damages, the selectmen voted unanimously to close the road to heavy vehicles per the request.

The Senior Citizens meeting on June 5 at 1 p.m. will feature a musical program by Mr. Arey and Mr. Nichols. The program is for the public and all are invited to attend.

The board of selectmen were pleased with the Woodstock voter turnout at the SAD #44 budget meeting. "We are pleased, encouraged, and inspired by the very fact that 153 registered voters chose to get involved in that very important issue," said a spokesman for the board.

Hanover

By DONNA WORCESTER

Rumford Point Cub Scout Pack 509 had their monthly pack meeting Wednesday, May 28, at the Knights of Pythias Hall in Hanover. The meeting was a demonstration to the Cubs' parents of their work this spring. The boys showed their ability in tree and bird identification and built bird houses.

Two of the bird houses built by the Cub Scouts were given as door prizes. They were won by Edward Glover, Rumford, and Harold Falkenham, Andover.

The Cub Scouts from Pack 509 who have completed their conservation program will receive conservation badges at a June 22 cook-out at Cubmaster Linda Couture's home.

RABBIT READERS CELEBRATE AT THE BETHEL LIBRARY

The children in grades K-3 at the Bethel and Crescent Park Schools have completed their Rabbit Reading Program. Rabbit Reading was initiated as a way to encourage children to read at home with their parents. The children who signed up for the program were given six weeks to complete 24 books for their choice. The children did this with parental supervision, either reading stories to their parents or having their parents read to them.

Beth Hitchcock and Sue Farrar (author of "Susan on Stage") kindly volunteered their time to read to the children in special story hour celebrations at the Bethel Library. Beth gave two readings Tuesday for the kindergarten through second graders and Sue will read to the third graders on Friday afternoon. More than 400 children have participated and will receive certificates for completing the program.

National Forest hopes to expand

As part of its newly developed management plan, the White Mountain National Forest hopes to expand its present boundaries. Projected expansion is in the neighborhood of Gilead, Mason, Albany and East Stoneham.

Among the properties being eyed by the U.S. Forest Service is the acreage of the Kings Inn, in Mason Township. Owner John MacMunn said he would consider selling "if the price is right."

The Forest Service has not announced any immediate plans to begin purchasing the additional acreage.

Phil Korhonen, who has a farm on the Flat Road, in West Bethel, hasn't heard anything official on the Forest Service plans, but he's not predisposed to help them. "I wouldn't sell them anything anyway. They'd just put it into wilderness," he said, referring to the recently released management plan that specifies putting 12,000 acres at Caribou and Spotted Mountain into wilderness study.

"It's already wilderness," he continued. "They keep doing that, they'll do away with all the loggers. They may as well shut the whole State of Maine down."

Despite the fact that the Forest Service has its eyes on various tracts of property around its current borders, it doesn't have the money or the authorization to go out and purchase everything it wants. In fact, said Chad Converse, the ranger at the Evans Notch District, the only land purchase negotiation presently going on is for a 1,700-acre tract in Stoneham, by Virginia Lake.

Mr. Converse said, however, that if someone on the national forest boundary in Mason, Albany or Gilead has land for sale, "We'd be willing to talk."

NEWS FROM BETHEL AREA

Health Center

Summer is fast approaching with its brilliant sunshine, so it's time to talk about skin care. The best way to guard against the harmful effects of overexposure to the sun's rays is to take protective measures. Sunbathing in early morning or late afternoon is less damaging to the skin than in the middle of the day.

The best protection is to apply a sunscreen to all skin that is not covered by clothing.

People often believe that a tanned person is healthier, but this is not true as far as the skin itself is concerned.

A suntan prevents further sunburn, but it does not protect the skin from sun damage, which may not be visible for many years. Sun damage is a factor in premature aging of the skin and also is known to be a factor in skin cancer.

The health center maintains a medical loan closet for the benefit of area residents. There are wheelchairs, walkers and hospital beds, but more equipment in good working order is always needed. If you have any hospital equipment and are willing to donate to the "closet" it would certainly be appreciated. Call Muriel Whitney at the health center.

THANK YOU

We would like to thank all of our family and friends for all the kindness shown us during our recent loss. To the B.E.A.R.S. for their quick response and hard work—you never gave up. To Bob and Joyce Stearns, Bill Williams, Norman Clanton, and Crawford Perry for all the help, advice and support. It was greatly appreciated. To the Oxford County Sheriff's Department and the Bethel Fire Department, a special thank you to all of you. And we would like to thank everyone who brought in food and also for all the wonderful cards and visits that helped so much in our time of sorrow.

Notes from the Woodstock Historical Society

Here is a spiritual epiphany described by Nathaniel Hawthorne:

"Christian faith is a grand cathedral, with divinely pictured windows. Standing without, you see no glory, nor can possibly imagine any; standing within, every ray of light reveals a harmony of unspeakable splendors.

"The three friends by one impulse glanced upward at the statue of Pope Julius; and there was the majestic figure stretching out the hand of benediction over them, and bending down...its visage of grand benignity. There is a singular effect oftentimes when, out of the midst of engrossing thought and deep absorption, we suddenly look up, and catch a glimpse of external objects. We seem at such moments to look farther and deeper into them than by any unmediated observation; it is as if they met our eyes alive, and with all their hidden meaning on the surface, but grew again inanimate and inscrutable the instant they became aware of our glances. So now, at that unexpected glimpse, Miriam, Donatello, and the sculptor all three imagined that they beheld the bronze pontiff endowed with spiritual life. A blessing was felt descending upon them from his outstretched hand; he appeared by look and gesture...

Here is a description of an English cottage by 19th century novelist Jane Austen:

"Barton Cottage, though small, was comfortable and compact...The building was regular, the roof was tiled, the window-shutters were not painted green, nor were the walls covered with honeysuckles...On each side of the entrance was a sitting room...and beyond them were more rooms and the stairs. Four bedrooms and two garrets formed the rest of the house. It had not been built many years and was in good repair...The situation of the house was good. High hills rose immediately behind, and at no great distance on each side; some of which were open downs, the others cultivated and woody...The prospect in front was extensive; it commanded the whole of the valley, and reached into the country beyond."

The Woodstock Museum will hold an open house June 4, from 1 to 4 p.m., for the beginning of its summer season. Most of you know from this column about the society's latest exhibits, especially the switchboard, so be sure and come. Also available for the first time are postcards of the museum. Do pick one up. Visit the museum any Saturday, 1-4 p.m. The guides are always happy to show you around. They are proud of our collections and like to talk about the history of the area. After all, that's why we're all there.

Ray and Anella Burnham have given the museum some fractional currency. Robert Billings has given some old tools to the museum. The society has received some flea

The Home Front By Bob Crane

• New home building system doesn't call for studs or sheathing. Rather, rigid prefabricated panels have a foam core of lightweight polystyrene insulation braced by steel beams. Good energy savings promised.

• Drum sander is basic to remove old finish on a floor down to the raw wood, but a small edging machine is necessary to get close to baseboards and corners. Three sandings are usually required.

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

All members and friends of the Bethel Historical Society are reminded that the monthly meeting will be held on June 5 at 7:30 p.m. in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House. Featured during the program portion of the meeting will be the Bicentennial Dancers who will present a program on 18th century ballroom music. Anyone is cordially invited to attend.

Approximately 100 persons attended the annual Faye Taylor Memorial Art Show and the Dr. Moses Mason Birthday Party during the past weekend. On Saturday May 31 the sixth annual Faye Taylor Art Show was held with many student entries from the elementary schools of SAD #44 and several from Telstar Regional High School. Winners in the Junior Division (Grades 1-4) were first prize, Amos Housman, Grade 1, Ethel Bisbee School; second prize, Heath Keniston, Grade 4, Crescent Park School; third prize, Adam Luxton, Grade 2, Ethel Bisbee School. Intermediate Division (Grades 5-8): first prize, Heather Keniston, Grade 5, Crescent Park School; second prize, Damon Lichtblau, Grade 5, Crescent Park School; third prize, Meredith Otten, Grade 5, Crescent Park School. In the Senior Division (Grades 9-12), there were only two entries that met the criteria for entering so the judges decided on only one prize, won by Charlotte Aron, a senior at Telstar Regional High School. Judges this year were Jan Baker, Donald Bennett, and Gemma Dreher. Many thanks are extended to the teachers of SAD #44 for all their efforts in making this year's art show such a success.

On Sunday the 197th birthday of Dr. Moses Mason was observed with an open house hosted by Ernest and Betty Perkins portraying the Masons, assisted by members of the society's Museum and Special Project Committees. During the afternoon the society also observed its 20th anniversary with a slide presentation by Society Director Stanley R. Howe who reviewed some of the highlights of the past two decades. The audience was welcomed by President Alden T. Kennett and represented a large number of his town-ric societies and museums throughout Maine. Craft demonstrators in the museum during the afternoon included Jan Todd, quilting; Dick Hastings, needlepoint; and Helen Morton, scratchboard. An exhibit "The Bethel Historical Society: The First 20 Years" was open to the public for the first time during the weekend.

At the March 1, 1897 Bethel town meeting $2,000 was raised for schools, $150 for repairs on school houses, and $150 allocated for textbooks. In the West Bethel column following that meeting the correspondent wrote: "Town meeting is over and we have done our share of scolding about high taxes and extravagant town officers, yet we re-elect the old officers unanimously and find that our rate of taxation is less than two-thirds that of some of our neighboring towns. What a privilege it is to grumble."

POTTERS EXHIBIT IN MASS.

Two local potters, Fay Corrin and Susan Kaufmann—both of Friedendorf Pottery, in Bryant Pond—will be exhibiting their work at the Festival by the Lake craft fair in Wakefield, Mass., June 14.

Michelle Morrisette, OHHS Region 11 business education junior, recently competed in the regional and state Accounting contests. Michelle won third place in both contests. In addition to a $25 cash award, she won a $500 scholarship to Thomas College and a $1,000 scholarship to Husson College.

W. Greenwood

By CAROLYN COLBY

Harry Childs of Stephens Memorial Hospital, Norway, was out to Irene Wilson's recently.

Joe and Muriel Gilbert attended a family party in Windham on Sunday celebrating birthdays and anniversaries. Marc, Leslie, Nathan and Jennifer Moore spent the Memorial Day weekend visiting both sets of grandparents, Harry and Bernie Moore and Woody and Cys Clark in Connecticut.

Sally Smith has her ice cream stand set up between Locke Mills and Bryant Pond. Really Sally has more than ice cream. She has fried clams, french fries, onion rings, hot dogs and hamburgers, I understand, and maybe more. We wish Sally the best of luck in her new business.

West Greenwood was well represented at the school budget meeting Wednesday evening.

Leah Deegan was on vacation the week before Memorial. She and her sister Marion Soule planned to go to Pennsylvania. I believe Leah went by this morning before I was able to call her so I'm not sure if they did go or not.

I'm getting a lot of mileage from this item. All who went to the budget meeting, remember the amendment to the amendment. Well this is a correction to a correction. First of all I wrote Helen Kraul's name wrong. Then I wrote a correction. It was pointed out to me by one of former school teachers that I had a grammatical error in my correction. It should read: Helen Kraul was the person who visited Irene Wilson recently not that visited. I was pleased that Mrs. Gunther corrected me for two reasons. First, my error was brought to my attention, and second I know someone out there is reading this. Eal Colby and Leah Deegan attended with other members of the Jackson-Silver Post, the Memorial Day services at Locke Mills, East Bethel, Bryant Pond and Andover. I went to all of those as well as the one in Bethel.

OXFORD POMONA

Oxford Pomona Grange met at Bear Mountain May 6, with 58 present. The fifth degree was conferred on seven candidates and two members were reinstated.

Alice Hoyt of Franklin Grange and Frances Allen of Norway will have aprons sent on to state, and Arlene Farr from West Paris and George Allen from Norway were the apple pie winners, so they will have to bake again for the state contest.

A certificate of merit for women's activities has been awarded to the CWA chairman.

A scholarship of $100 has been given to Scott Lewis from the Pomona scholarship fund.

The attendance money was won by Leland Bisbee.

Twenty-one members went to the Methodist Church in South Paris on Grange Sunday.

Josephine Tripp resigned as treasurer due to ill health and Glenn Chute volunteered to help out until September. He was immediately installed into office by Francis Conant and helpers.

The Youth Committee will contribute to Project Graduation at Telstar and Oxford Hills.

The CWA will contribute to the Educational Aid and Nurses Scholarship funds.

There will be a food sale on June 14, at Shop and Save, Oxford.

A 6 o'clock Shop and Save supper will be held at Norway Grange on May 20.

There will be a Special Membership meeting at West Paris Grange on May 31, at 7:30. Refreshments will be served and all visitors are to bring something to help out.

Students-of-the-month

Selected as freshman-of-the-month for April is Steve McLain, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Steven McLain, Jr., of Gilead. Steve was nominated by his World Studies I instructor for showing a genuine interest in that class. This is evident in his contributions to class discussions and also in the extra, unassigned work he does. Steve has done additional readings on his own to further understand issues brought up in class and has even written a short skit to demonstrate the laws of Kepler and has gotten some of his classmates to help him perform it.

Fred Kuvaja, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eino Kuvaja, of Greenwood, is April's sophomore-of-the-month. Fred was nominated by his Biology instructor for being active in that class throughout the year. Fred has always passed in well-done lab reports and homework assignments and recently he earned the highest score on a chapter test.

Junior-of-the-month for April is Sarah Chapman, the daughter of Alan Chapman, of Bethel, and Louise Chapman, of Locke Mills. Sarah was nominated for her enthusiasm in her Creative Writing mini-course. Sarah's instructor states she is even working on her own writing project to the extent that she has shown an interest in using the word processor at school and has even gotten herself a disk to do so.

April's senior-of-the-month is Eric Wight, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Wight, of Newry. Eric was nominated by both his Advanced Placement English and College Prep Physics instructors. Recently Eric completed a "fine paper on the elements of tragedy" for his English class and has contributed to the quality of the class throughout the year. In his Physics class, Eric was cited for constructing an excellent "Rube Goldberg" apparatus that showed many hours of work and was definitely the highlight of the recent physics competition and science fair.

SOCIAL SECURITY INFO IS FREE OF CHARGE

Responding to numerous inquiries, Don Connor, Social Security manager in Rumford, said this week that several firms are operating in the Rumford and Farmington areas soliciting people through direct mail and advertisements in various publications to purchase services that are normally provided at no charge by the Social Security office.

The most common come-on is a pitch to new brides offering to change their name in Social Security records for a $10 fee. This service is free if you deal with the Social Security office directly, Mr. Connor said.

Other gimmicks are also being used, Mr. Connor said. Call the Social Security office, at 364-3731, if you have any questions.

Other students receiving recognition were, freshmen: Rebecca Hutchins, in CP1 Earth Science; Shannon Fuller, Earth Science; Nancy Lamontagne, JEP English; Chris Buckingham, CVP English; sophomore: Tedd Berry, CP2 English; juniors: Karen Gould, CP2 Physics; Louise Snyder, General Chemistry; Stacey Wilbur, General Chemistry; Glori Bollo, CP1 Physics; Kelly Wells, CVP Industrial Revolution and Reform; seniors: Scott Newton, Special Recognition in Industrial Arts; Lisa Jordan, Independent Study English; Marsha Moxcey, CP1 Physics.

Students-of-the-month are sponsored by the Telstar Regional High School Chapter of the National Honor Society. They each receive a free pizza from Charlie's.

The program consisted of: music and songs by John Mahar, Rumford; readings by Edna York; guitar and harmonica music, Charlotte Cole; music and remarks, Pastor Eric Hanson.

Nice refreshments were served. Mildred Dickson made remarks about the county meeting.

Helen Goodine spoke about the next council meeting to be held at Bethel. The subject is to be nursing home insurance. Virginia Walker reported that the recreational program would like some help from the senior citizens.

Peggy Coolidge reported six get-well cards were sent this month.

Book on architecture of Oxford County expected later this year

Dr. Stanley R. Howe, director of the Bethel Historical Society, announced that a book on Oxford County architecture is expected to be published later this year. The final product of the Oxford County Historic Resource Survey, this publication was funded by a grant from the U.S. Department of the Interior, National Park Service and the Maine Historic Preservation Commission, which approved the grant to the Bethel Historical Society.

Written by Randall H. Bennett, of Rumford, curator of collections at the society, editor and author of numerous books and articles on western Maine, the book focuses upon the most important buildings in the county, from modest timber-framed 18th century houses to imposing Beaux Arts commercial structures.

Since no authoritative history of the county exists, this publication should go far in identifying these economic, social, political and cultural factors that have given Oxford County its historic character. This volume also will include a brief historical overview of 42 towns, plantations and townships in the county, as well as a selective bibliography dealing with Oxford County history—the first of its kind to be published.

Titled "Oxford County, Maine: A Guide to its Historic Architecture," the book, containing over 1,000 entries and 400 photographs, was written with several purposes in mind. Chief among them was to assist the Maine Historic Preservation Commission in identifying properties eligible for nomination to the National Register of Historic Places.

At the local level, this volume may also provide the groundwork for a deeper appreciation and understanding of the county's historic resources, as well as an incentive for local preservation efforts.

"It was really fortunate for everyone involved that a person of Randy Bennett's ability has completed the book," commented Dr. Howe, who also serves as president of the Oxford County League of Historical Societies. "He has the breadth of knowledge, extensive publication experience and deep appreciation of architectural merit," he added.

Inquiries concerning the publication should be directed to the society, at 824-2908, or by writing, P.O. Box 12, Bethel, Maine 04217.

Skiway hosts luncheon for tourism community

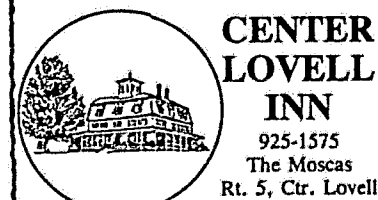

Sunday River Ski Resort hosted a luncheon Monday for the local tourism industry. The luncheon was held at the skiway's newly acquired food outlet, D.W. McKens.

Sunday River's marketing director, Wendie Gray, was the hostess and told the guests—who represented restaurants, lodgings, travel agencies and media—that Sunday River was now the largest ski area in Maine and New Hampshire. She explained that the skiway, upon completion of its current expansion (see last week's Citizen), will have greater lift capacity than any other ski area in the two states and will have greater snow-making capability than any other area in the two states.

If you're going to tow a trailer on your trip this summer, it may be wise to install an auxiliary transmission cooler.

Weak battery may be a symptom of a problem elsewhere in your car's electrical system. Have it checked.

One out of two people will be involved in an alcohol-related crash at some time in their lives, according to MADD (Mothers Against Drunk Drivers).

Check your wiper blades between rain storms. Dry, hot weather causes the rubber to crack.

Wait for an overheated engine to cool before refilling with water. Pouring in cold water too soon, or too fast, may crack the engine block or cylinder heads.

GREENWOOD LITTLE LEAGUE

Greenwood Little League started its season off with a close win over Bryant Pond last Tuesday. Both pitching staffs were superb but with the change over during the fourth inning, it became apparent that Greenwood's Pete Kimball had the pitching power against Corry Campbell. Chris Kenyon, Scott Higgins, and Brandon Moore scored doubles which ultimately became the winning margin over Bryant Pond (11-8).

Greenwood met the Bethel Braves last Thursday night in a game that was tough from the start. At the end of three innings Bethel Braves were ahead by two runs. However the terrific thunder-boomer called a halt to the game. Greenwood is anxious to re-play with this great group in the future.

Andover came to Greenwood Tuesday night in what was a very "chilling" defeat for Greenwood despite excellent hits by Scott Higgins, (a home run by Pete Kimball), Adam Finley and Vince Roberts. But the pressure was on with Andover's pitcher Howie Roberts giving up only one walk and Greenwood's capable, but tired, Pete Kimball giving up 10. The Andover ability to steal was apparent throughout the game with a final score of 15-12.

Anyone wishing to make a contribution to defray the cost of new uniforms for the Greenwood Little League may do so by calling Evanna Davis, 875-3950; Joan Roberts, 875-5890; or Madora Hathaway, 1-665-2502. Appreciation is expressed to those supporting the team through donations. The next game is Greenwood versus Bethel Red Sox at Greenwood, Wednesday, June 4.

You cannot say, and you must not say
That he is dead, he is just away!
With a cheery smile, and a wave of the hand,
He has wandered into an unknown land,
And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be, since he lingers there
For the old-time step and the glad return,
Think of him faring on, as dear
In the love of There as the love of Here;
Think of him still as the same and say:
He is not dead—he is just away!

Health Tip:

Depression is one of the most common illnesses in all of medicine and is often mistaken for other conditions, such as vitamin deficiency, low blood, change of life, exhaustion, and low sugar. It's important to understand that being depressed doesn't mean you're mentally ill or "going crazy," even though you may have felt that way.

Most depression is caused by a deficiency or lack of one or two special chemicals that carry messages from one nerve ending to the next, then jump back. It isn't known why these special chemicals become deficient, but there are medications to correct the problem. In other words, it can be said that depression is caused, many times, by a chemical imbalance in the brain and antidepressant medications help return the brain chemistry to normal.

Memorial Day recounted

An 8 a.m. flag-raising at the Legion hall in Locke Mills last Monday started the Memorial Day activities for the Jackson-Silver Post and Unit. Coffee and donuts were served.

Commander Earl Colby lined up the marching units, which stepped off at 9 a.m. sharp.

Leading was 1st vice commander Leroy Patten, President Leah Deegan and Miss Poppy, Amy Patten, carrying her bouquets of little red poppies. The American flag and post colors were next in line, plus the firing squad, with Harry Swan in command.

The Telstar Regional High School band led the drum cadence and provided the music at the honor roll, with Harry Davis directing.

The Daughters of Union Veterans also took part, as did the Bethel Boy Scout Troop #565, with their leaders.

At the honor roll, Commander Colby introduced the speakers, State Americanism Officer Ed Roach, of Rumford, Past State Commander John Howe, and WWI veteran Alanson Cummings. There was a prayer by Chaplain Kovi George, and the National Anthem was rendered by the band.

President Leah Deegan placed the wreath at the monument and Chaplain George and Fannie Cummings took a floral piece to the water.

The beautiful geranium, already in place, was put there earlier by Stephen Seames, in appreciation of all the servicemen and servicewomen for their contributions to their country and community.

The usual brief ceremony at Mt. Abram Cemetery included the placing of one flag for all, prayer, appropriate music, the volley and taps. There was a car for the older vets and disabled to ride in.

Ice cream was served at the hall and all who could went to East Bethel for a similar service in the cemetery, which was appreciated by the local folks.

At Bryant Pond, Legionnaire Roland Lord was the speaker and a fine program was given by the young people, in charge of the D.U.V., before the start of the parade.

Leading off were President Deegan, 1st Vice Commander Leroy Patten and Miss Poppy, Amy Patten. The commander was very proud that his four daughters and wife Ann were participating. Many youngsters carried their small flags to Lake Christopher for the volley and taps, and the strewing of the flowers on the water.

Several cars went to Andover for the 3 p.m. ceremony under the charge of Laura Hutchins. The Jackson-Silver Post and Unit and several auxiliary girls led the parade, with the colors and firing squad.

Ensign Timothy M. Kersey II

KERSEY GRADUATES ACADEMY

Midshipman Timothy M. Kersey II, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Kersey, of Bethel, was graduated from the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis and commissioned an ensign in the U.S. Navy in ceremonies May 21.

Ensign Kersey is a 1982 graduate of Telstar Regional High School. While attending the Naval Academy he served in the Drum and Bugle Corps, took part in musical presentations and in intramural tennis. In his senior year he was selected as sub-commander (second in command) of the 150-member Drum and Bugle Corps.

After serving on temporary duty at Brunswick Naval Air Station, Ensign Kersey will attend flight school, in Pensacola, Fla.

MARITIME ACADEMY GRADUATE

Midshipman Allie W. Milligan, of Bryant Pond, graduated in April from Maine Maritime Academy, in Castine. He received a Bachelor of Science degree, with a major in Marine Engineering.

During his four years at the academy, Milligan sailed on training cruises to Bermuda, Denmark, England, Finland, Holland and the Madeira Islands. He was one of 137 graduates in his class.

In addition to earning the bachelor's degree, graduates of the academy qualify for an officer's license in the U.S. Merchant Marine and for a commission in the U.S. Naval Reserve.

Milligan is a 1982 graduate of Rumford High School.

The Boy Scouts and young Toby Farrington took part in the program. Speaker WWI vet Alanson Cummings concluded his talk by reciting "In Flanders Field" and placing poppies on the three monuments, representing WWI-WWII, Korean and Vietnam veterans. The Telstar band furnished the music.

Selectmen grant permits

The Bethel Board of Selectmen, meeting on Tuesday night instead of Monday night this week, approved the following permits:

• A liquor license for Richard and Natalie Fain—the new owners of The Norseman Inn;

• Auto graveyard permits for Gaudreus Repair, and Sherwood Jordan (that is, The Pits).

Mr. Fain told the board he planned to operate the inn for more months of the year than had been the case. "We expect to run it year-round—maybe a break in November and mud season. We want to keep the atmosphere the way it is, maybe expand a little on food service."

In approving the auto graveyard permits, the selectmen—following research done by the town manager—rescinded their requirement that the operators have liability insurance. The only requirements of the state are that the graveyards be screened from view from the road.

Bucket brigade takes to ski lift to fight brush fire

Firefighters rode the chairlift at Sunday River last Wednesday afternoon, but it wasn't to go skiing. The chairlift happened to be the easiest and quickest way up the mountain, where a stubborn brush fire, whipped by high winds, was threatening to get out of control.

Not only were Bethel and Rumford firefighters involved, but the Sunday River skiway staff and volunteers from Outward Bound, in Newry, all carried buckets of water up the mountain on the chairlift.

Even so, it was very slow going against the fire.

More high tech, in the way of a firefighting helicopter from the Maine Warden Service, saved the day. Piloted by Harold Jones, the chopper worked all afternoon, picking up water from ponds at the skiway and dumping it right where it was needed. The high winds made flying particularly tricky, especially flying while trying to fight a fire.

Bethel firefighter Dave Brown said of pilot Jones' efforts: "Without him we'd still be fighting that fire, except we'd be fighting it in Northwest Bethel."

The fire began as a controlled brush fire on Spruce Peak. The Sunday River staff is carving new trails on Spruce Peak and burning the brush. The fire, however, got out of control due to the high winds, firefighters said.

Gould takes state lacrosse title

The Gould Academy men's varsity lacrosse team captured the Maine Lacrosse Association championship over runner-up schools Kents Hill and Hebron Academy.

Led by John Mendola, of Fairfield, Conn., senior attackman and lacrosse high school "All-American" for the state of Maine, the Huskies outscored their opponents 125-80 over the course of the recently completed season.

Mendola accounted for 44 goals and 10 assists. Others who figured prominently in the scoring were 1987 captain-elect Derek Dresser, of Bethel, with 22 goals and 10 assists; Lucian Smith, of Kennebunkport, with 18 goals and 4 assists; and Peter Cline, of Bedford, N.H., with 14 goals and 10 assists.

Captain of the team was senior Spencer Ordway, of Bridgton, a mid-fielder, who scored 7 goals and had 8 assists. Goalies for the team were seniors George Packard, of Manchester, Mass., and Harold Kaplan, of Brownsville, Vt. Both averaged over 8 saves per game.

Coaches Will Graham and Peter Rackliffe, Gould faculty members, look forward to the 1987 season with eight players returning with solid talent and experience.

The most-improved trophy for the 1986 season went to Don Kingsbury, a senior from Port Clyde. The sportsmanship trophy was presented to Spencer Ordway. John Mendola received the Banker Lacrosse Award, given each year to the Gould player considered to be the best all-around player and team leader. Four players were also selected to play in the Maine Lacrosse Association All-Star Game: Ordway, Smith, Kaplan and Mendola.

Mainers breathe sigh of relief as DOE halts search

After weeks of news leaks from New Hampshire officials, Energy Secretary John S. Herrington announced in Washington last Wednesday afternoon that his department was suspending its search for a second high-level nuclear waste site.

The search for a second site had been going on since Congress passed the high-level nuclear waste act of 1982, which authorized construction of a first deep repository for nuclear waste and a search for locating a second repository.

The DOE's short list of potential second sites was released last January and three Mainers into an uproar, since two prime locations were identified as the Bottle Lake area, near Bangor, and the Sebago Lake area, near Naples.

Ten sites in six other eastern and midwestern states were also included in the draft report identifying potentially good areas for burying high-level radioactive waste from nuclear power reactors and weapons production.

Secretary Herrington's announcement last Wednesday did not say that the second site was a dead issue, but only that the DOE would not proceed actively looking at the candidate areas because a second site would not be needed for decades and his agency had to concentrate on selecting and constructing a first site. (The three finalists for becoming a first site are the states of Texas, Nevada and Washington. One irony is that Nevada doesn't even have a nuclear power plant in the state.)

Politicians and anti-nuclear activists claimed that the reason the DOE called off its search for a second site was because of the public outcry against such a site. (According to a DOE official, 80 percent of all letters received by his office pertaining to the dump issue came from Maine. And crowds at the public hearings held in Maine were considerably larger than in any other state.)

Newry's Alva Morrison, of the Maine Nuclear Referendum Committee, told The Citizen, "We played kind of rough with the boys from Washington, so they called time out in the game. It's not the end of the game, but it's definitely cause for celebration. The people of Maine should take some credit for throwing out a major bureaucracy on its ear."

Mr. Morrison was not at all confident that the DOE had given up on a second site. "This (the suspension of the search) seems to be a last-ditch effort to salvage what they can of the nuclear industry. If they have trouble—politically or technically (with the first site)—they'll be right back in Maine."

The DOE's Roger Gale, director of the Office of Policy and Outreach, told The Citizen the second site was now basically a dead issue. "I think it's reasonable that people don't have to worry now," he said.

Mr. Gale said the decision to suspend the search for a second site began being formulated four or five weeks ago, not long after legislation was introduced by the Maine Congressional delegation, and others, to delete a second site from the 1982 act. (The Maine delegation split on the value of such legislation, with Senator Mitchell and Representatives Snowe and McKernan supporting it. Sen. Cohen did not, saying it would be divisive—pitting the eastern states against the western states.)

Mr. Gale said the reasons behind the final decision were: confidence that the first site would be a good site; a realization that the amount of spent fuel being produced is less than had originally been calculated; a concern that the agency's manpower was being spread too thin in trying to deal with two potential sites at once; and a desire to spend more effort developing the proposed receiving and transfer station in Tennessee. (This facility would take the high-level wastes from the eastern power reactors and hold them until the first repository was ready to receive it. The wastes would then be shipped out west. The transfer station was not going to be used, however, to accumulate the wastes to be shipped into the second site.)

Mr. Gale denied speculation that the DOE had sought and gained the cooperation of the eastern politicians to help push its case for a first site in a western state. "I don't think you can make deals on something like this," he said.

He also denied that the uproar in Maine had anything to do with suspending the search for a second site. "All of us were sensitized by the uproar," he admitted, but he said this led DOE officials to be especially careful to look at potential sites without regard to emotional fervor

Tuell Town Road remains abandoned, say W. Paris selectmen

Despite complaints from several citizens, the West Paris selectmen decided last Thursday night to stand by their previous decision that the Tuell Town Road is abandoned.

Their original decision on the matter was made April 10. Following the complaints, they researched the issue further, reviewing a 1915 Town of Paris survey and inspecting the road itself earlier last week. The survey, they noted, showed the road as abandoned.

In other business, the selectmen acknowledged receipt of a letter from the State of Maine Department of Transportation. The letter stated the DOT was in the process of implementing legislation on local bridges.

The purpose of the legislation is to have the governmental entity responsible for maintenance of a particular road also have responsibility for maintenance of bridges on that road.

Thus, the DOT letter stated, maintenance responsibility for the Moose Pond Brook Bridge, on Moose Hill Road, in West Paris, will be transferred to the town on July 1, unless the selectmen file concerns about the condition of the bridge.

In certain cases the state will continue to maintain bridges, if their length exceeds certain minimums. The state will continue to maintain bridges that have a clear span of 25 feet or more; or, in the case of a T-beam or steel stringer bridge, a clear span of 20 feet or more—and the average annual daily traffic on the bridge must be at least 25 vehicles.

of particular states. He said Georgia residents voiced hardly any protest about having their state included as a potential site, but that didn't mean the DOE was going to put the site in Georgia. "We're not going to let the noise from any one state affect the program," he said.

As for the reams of paper sent to Washington by people speaking at the public hearings or writing directly to the DOE, Mr. Gale said they'll all be tabulated and kept for any future continuation of the search process.

Settlement nears for former Stowell workers

An official with the National Labor Relations Board said it seems that both parties involved with the Stowell labor dispute are working hard to reach a settlement before June 9, on which date the case is scheduled for trial before an administrative law judge.

Robert Pulcini, case officer on the Stowell case, has contacted the 30-plus workers who were never rehired by the new owners at Stowell. He has been trying to determine whether they would accept jobs at the Bryant Pond mill, if those jobs were offered.

The case was filed by the Furniture Workers of America local after the new owners of Stowell hired a new workforce when they re-opened the mill after two weeks of foreclosure by Casco Northern Bank last summer. While the former Stowell mill had been union, the re-opened Stowell mill was not, and workers charged the new owners refused to hire them because of their union affiliation.

If the parties involved in the case cannot come to an agreement, Mr. Pulcini said, the case will go to trial. At that time the government will have to prove that the displaced workers were not rehired because of union affiliation.

Mr. Pulcini will be in Bryant Pond later this week, interviewing more former workers. The interviews will be held at the fire station.

He said it is not unusual for a settlement to be reached "on the courthouse steps."

In this case, the courthouse will be the Maine Law School, in Portland. That's where the trial is scheduled to begin Monday morning, in the Moot Courtroom.
